

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is the method of forming the gate in the semiconductor device. The present method can prevent abnormal oxidization and lifting at the interface of the stack gate consisting of polysilicon and a metal and can be 5 applied to even the single metal gate, by replacing a re-oxidization process for recovering damage of the gate oxide film generated in the gate patterning process with the oxygen plasma treatment.